no longer remains the slightest doubt that the next congree will contain a substantial republican majority.

This fact is proved by a thorcanvass by the national republican managers; and this fact is admitted by the national democratic managers.

The democrats gave up more than two weeks ago, knowing full welf that there was no hope for the return of a democratic ma-Jority, and that is the reason why President Wilson was appealed to lo send and his now historic state-ment. The democratic congressions. sional managers told the president flat-forced that they were beaten, and that it was up to him to force stall a republican landslide, and he and, and for the first time In the history of this republic, the president allowed partisanship lose the dignity of the office of chief executive of the nation. The next house of representahes being republican, the first ongressional district would make mistake to send a democrat to commutee of any importance, and would be of no use whatever to this district; while, on the other hand, Bert Chandler, baving had two years' experience, would at-tain added influence by the fact that he was a second termer and of the same political faith as the

The United States IS republicars. and has been for fifty years-the his majorities are on the republican side, and when that party has been united it has never known defeat. Six years ago, the republicans were split as under, and Wil-son and an astounding democratic majority went into power. Two years later, the party still split reduced the democratic majority, but did not control. Two years ago, the republican party still split, such many hall moose candidate. with many bull moose candidates in the field, and with the president's campaign stogan, "He kept us out of war," many republican districts sent democrats to congress, but at that the democratic majority was only one out of that body of members numbering 135.

This year finds the republican party reunited stronger than ever, with Taft and Roosevelt signing the same stories in print, and with united party standing solidly be-

The democrats had nothing to brag about in electing President Wilson—it was purely accident, and after the whole campaign is stripped of its false colors, regard-less of the misnomer, "He kept us out of war," the one and single fact upon which can be based the election of Woodrow Wilson, was the refusal of Candidate Hughes to in California. More than twenty democratic congressmen were elected to the present bouse of representatives from normal republican districts on the "He kept us out of war" program. Hun-dreds of thousands of women throughout states where they have equal suffrage voted for Wilson and democrat congressional candidutes because they were opposed to sending their sons to warr—they followed the president's slogan, believing that he would keep us out of war; but after the Germans had vivisected the "too proud to fight" attitude of our chief executive they had no hesitarcy in sinking the Lusitania, and we were The republican party has nevel

The republican party has never known defeat when united; and never since the civil war has the party been united into a solid phajanx as today. ment of the resident showing par-tisanship first.

President Wilson, democrat, curried bansas by a large ma-jority, because the people of that state looked upon him as a patriot first and a partisan second. At the same time president Wilson car-ried the state Arthur Capper, re-publican, was elected governor of the state by a majority of more than 80,000. That year five dem-ocrats were elected to congress in republican districts. This year republican districts. Not even the most sanguine despocrat would place the great state of Obio in the democratic column with a united republican parry, and the results are bound to show that not more than three democrats will be in congress from the Buckeye state after the fourth day of next March, There are seven democratic con-gressmen from Pennsylvania—all the result of a divided republican party and "He kept us out of war" platform. This year the republi-cans will hold their strength and add three republicans. In this state three democrats now in congress were indersed by republicans immediatelys following the presi-dent's statement that "Politics is adjourned," the republicans not adjourned," the republicans not believing that be would change his mind. Of the 43 congressmen from New York, 76 of them are demopublicans. A remitted republican party will elect eight in these districts now represented by democrats, and the socialist candidate, of course, will be defeated, with the republicans having the best of the fight to elect their man in the district now represented by Londistrict now represented by Lon-

Of California's 11 congressmen, four are democrats and one a pro-hibitionist. The republicans will defeat at least three of these dem-ocrats this year, and will elect a republican to succeed Bandall, the prohibitionist.

Of the four democrats in In-diana, the republicans will gain three and lose one-Wheeler, an anti-war republican, elected twice in a democratic district, the republicans will lose. There are two democratic and one independent congressmen from massachusetts, and with a reunited republican parry we should have a clean state there and elect the entire quota of 16 members. Schall, the lone progressive can-didate from Minnesota, who always voted with the democrats, will be replaced by a republican and we have a good chance to de-feat the only democrat from that state.

The democratic party in Missouri is split wide open, and while it is doubtful, it need not be surprising if the republicans hold the wo republican members they have there and add two or three more to the republican majority, in addition to electing a republican sen-

Of the six congressmen in Ne-braska, the republicans now have three and the democrats three. There is no doubt about the re-publicans holding their strength there, and every indication points to republican success in two of the democratic districts, and some prognosticators go as far as predicting a clean republican slate from that state.

A local fight in Jersey City may result in defeating the democrat there, and reports from Wee-bawkin are in favor of the republican candidate—and it reed not be surprising to see the nest house with a full quota, 12 republican congressman, from the mosquito

The republicans will also gain one in Rhode Listand, one in Utah, one in Washington, and there is every indication that of the 212 districts now represented by re-publicans will return their candidates.

It is a cinch the house will be republican; and it need not be sur-prising to see the senate change its political complexion. There are at present 52 democrats and 44 republicans. Everybody concedes the fact that Medill McCormack will defeat J. Ham Lewis, and that Arthur Capper will defeat Senator Thompson, that Ford will be defeated in Michigan, that Folk is Michigan will take the place of a democrat in New Hampshire, and there are eight other shire, and there are eight other states where the republicans have a good chance to will. It is all important that Bert Chandler be re-elected and that E. B. Howard be defeated, for the good of the state and the good of the district,
